Dear Hiring Manager,

I am interested in applying for the Data Scientist opening at your business. I found out about the job opening from Indeed. After reading the description, I recognized that my skills and experiences would align well with the position. I am interested in the position because I am an analytical thinker who can develop impactful data insights.

Currently, I am pursuing an undergraduate degree in Accounting and Data Science. While in school, I have developed critical thinking skills through courses such as Data Structures and Algorithms, Data Analysis, and Principles of Study Design.

After working as a baseball umpire, a student worker, and gaining experience at Home Depot, I have also become a strong problem solver and a good communicator. I have learned to make crucial decisions and communicate effectively with others. I believe that I have the skills necessary to succeed and grow in this role.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Please review my resume and application materials for further details regarding my expertise. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss this position in more detail.

Sincerely

Jack Stewart
